

gatherED

28 April - 23 May 2021

Please join our guest curator and the artists for the launch
Saturday 1 May from 2 - 4pm gatherED brings together a group of mid-career artists and alumni who are celebrated members of the University community. With careers that span our region and beyond, each artist has a particular and profound relationship to our place, our University and our people.

Curated by Ahn Wells, artist, gallerist and former student of the University, she has selected seven artists working in contemporary creative practice in Newcastle. From Olivia Parsonage's applied domestic moments, to Dino Consalvo's en plein air workings of the shoreline, Wells gathers together a thoughtful and compelling group of artists and their recent work. Paul Maher expresses place, and through his depictions of the everyday, he reveals the majesty of the townscape. Peter Lankas describes with compassion the suburban moments we all share, Helene Leane and Michele Tear are inspired by landscapes found across the country and Malcom Sands captures the brilliant hues from Australia's very centre.
